President appointed new Deputy Head of the National Security Bureau

On Tuesday 15th October President of the Republic of Poland has appointed Dr Zdzislaw Lachowski to the position of the Deputy Head of NSB.

Dr Zdzislaw Lachowski (Poland) was Senior Fellow at the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (SIPRI) Euro-Atlantic Security Programme and Leader of the Conventional Arms Control Project in the Institute. He graduated from the Warsaw University in 1976 and then worked at the Polish Institute of International Affairs in Warsaw (1976-89). He has published extensively on the problems of European political and military security and arms control as well as on other European politico-military issues. In recent years he has also dealt with Asian security and confidence building issues (Central Asia, the Korean Peninsula, Taiwan).

His latest publications are Confidence- and Security-Building Measures in the New Europe (OUP: Oxford, 2004); The Relevance of Conventional Arms Control in Europe (leader and co-author, 2006, available at URL <http://www.sipri.org/contents/worldsec/eurosec.html>), Tools for Building Confidence on the Korean Peninsula (leader and co-author, SIPRI-CSS, ETH Zurich, 2007); and Foreign Military Bases in Eurasia (SIPRI Policy Paper no. 18, 2007). He has regularly contributed to the SIPRI Yearbook (OUP-Oxford) on European security and conventional arms control since 1992 and to the Strategic Yearbook (Scholar, Warsaw) since 1996.
