President Andrzej Duda very satisfied with NATO summit results

Polish President Andrzej Duda is very satisfied with the result of the NATO summit held in Warsaw, the president's chief aide Krzysztof Szczerski said on Saturday, the second day of the meeting.

"President Andrzej Duda is very satisfied with the results of the summit, with all the decisions made, with all the talks taking place here," Krzysztof Szczerski told reporters.

The talks confirmed that the "summit has been a summit of unity", according to Szczerski, who added that the allies had proved that a joint and tangible response to all threats was possible.

Krzysztof Szczerski added that "each ally contributes to common activity, each NATO member is (both) a recipient and provider of security to the Alliance and the Alliance's partners".

"Poland is emerging from the summit as a country that has been strengthened by allied activity," Szczerski stressed.

A great number of delegations have congratulated Poland on the summit's organisation, according to Krzysztof Szczerski.
