Bronislaw Komorowski and Federica Mogherini discuss EU security policy

President Bronislaw Komorowski met with High Representative of the European Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy Federica Mogherini on Thursday to discuss European and EU security and defence policy.

President Komorowski, speaking with reporters following the meeting, said that Mogherini was preparing an EU summit to take place next year and be devoted to EU defence policy.

"This will offer a chance to conduct a review of the security situation on the outskirts of the EU and to raise the question of starting a process of building a European, EU security and defence policy," assessed the president.

President Komorowski assessed that the summit should also discuss the amending of the European security strategy in force since 2003. "Much has changed since as regards security. This should be reflected in new entries," stressed the president.
